To the Media:

The Milwaukee Bucks would like to welcome members of the media to the Milwaukee Arena. Our entire organization has an appreciation for your efforts and aims and will assist you in any way possible. In return, the coverage the media has afforded us throughout our years in the NBA has been superb and we appreciate your dedication. The following are some of the services we will provide and some of the things we ask of you to help us run our operation smoothly.

- * Individual game credentials should be requested a minimum of 30 hours prior to game time (Friday noon for Saturday and Sunday games). Pre-arranged credentials may be picked up at the will-call window in the southwest corner of the Arena just off the Kilbourn Street entrance. Credentials are good for admittance to the Arena, Press Room, and home and visiting locker rooms. Media members holding Bucks' season passes should notify this office of their intentions to cover a game in order to reserve seating on the press table. All press seating in the Milwaukee Arena is on court level.

- * The press room is located on court level in the northeast corner of the Arena. The room opens 1½ hours before the game and again at halftime and following the game. Secure storage of typewriters, coats, and the like is available. We must limit press room usage to members of the media only when valid Bucks' press passes are presented. It is impossible to accommodate family members, friends, guests, or others. The professional intent of the room is to provide a meeting and working place for bonafide writers, reporters, broadcasters, and game personnel.

- * Both the Bucks' and visitors' locker rooms will be open up to 45 minutes before game time and ten minutes after the game. Your cooperation is asked in maintaining a work atmosphere in the locker rooms for post-game interviews. Those newspapers with morning deadlines and TV stations doing live spots should be given preference in obtaining players and coaches. Basically common courtesy should prevail.

- * Special instructions for all cameramen can be found on the back of the season photo passes and on the envelopes in which the single game passes are issued.

- * Pre-game press notes, lineup and scoring sheets, and the current program insert will be available in the Press Room before the game. Programs will be available on a limited basis. Play-by-play, quarter stats, and half-time box scores will be delivered directly to the press table. Please keep sets quarter-by-quarter. A limited number of play-by-play sheets and halftime boxes will be available in the Press Room after the game. Complete final boxes and fourth quarter play-by-plays will be available after the game in the Press Room.

- * The Bucks provide complimentary telecopier service at every home game. Harold Lewis operates the service. Special arrangements to file off day stories or the like can be made through the Bucks publicity office. Any writers who need to rent video relay terminals to file stories, should contact the Bucks publicity office at least one week in advance of the game to secure arrangements.

Cordially,
Bill King II

1983-84 SCHEDULE FORMAT

Under a timetable that has been in effect the past three seasons, the 1983-84 schedule will run 171 days and encompass 943 regular season games concluding Sunday, April 15. Ralph Sampson will make his professional debut October 29 as the Houston Rockets host the San Antonio Spurs. The 34th Annual All-Star game in Denver's McNichols Arena on January 29th will once again feature the League's top talent in the mid-winter classic.

The longest homestand of the season for the Bucks encompasses a four game stretch and occurs four times during the season. The schedule has the Bucks playing at home eight Sundays, seven Tuesdays, nine Wednesdays, three Thursdays, ten Fridays, and four Saturdays.

Milwaukee will close the regular season April 14 with the club that provided the competition for the season opener, the Indiana Pacers. The longest road skein of the season encompasses eight games and occurs just once during the season. The road trip is buffered somewhat as the All-Star game on January 29 divides the trip nearly in half. From January 22 through the 25th the Bucks find themselves on the eastern portion of the country playing at Boston, at Washington, and at Atlanta. Following the All-Star game the club resumes with a west coast trip that begins January 31 at Golden State, continues with stops in Seattle, Portland, and Utah, before winding up the journey February 7 in Kansas City. There are two four-game road trips during the course of the season the first of which runs from November 15 to the 19th and includes Los Angeles, San Diego, Phoenix and Denver. The second is February 19 through the 25th and includes Chicago, Houston, Dallas, and San Antonio.

With the addition of the NBA's 23rd franchise, the Dallas Mavericks, three seasons ago, and the subsequent restructuring of the League by division and conference, the Bucks will face their eleven Eastern Conference opponents six times each (except two clubs). Milwaukee will play their Western Conference rivals just twice. The home/road appearances vs. each club will be divided in half.

The Mississippi River is the dividing line separating the Eastern and Western Conferences. In order to determine which teams would play uneven amounts of games against teams within their own conference, the schedule was prepared by assigning teams within a division numbers one through five or one through six. Blind draws were held to assign a team the schedule which corresponds to the number it selected. Milwaukee drew uneven games against New York and Detroit. The Knicks will visit the Brew City just twice while the Bucks will play the Pistons in the Silverdome two times.

The current schedule format was adopted by a vote of the NBA Board of Governors the summer of 1979. The schedule is similar to that of the past four seasons when the format was designed to enhance inter-conference rivalries and save on travel expenses. Thus the Bucks remain in the Eastern Conference for the fourth consecutive year having entered the NBA in 1968 in the east (Phoenix entered the west the same time) and switching to the Western Conference for a short period in between.

The home road split of games is fairly well balanced except for the months of February and April. By months the club splits their schedule at: October, 1 home and 0 road; November, 6 home and 10 road; December, 6 home and 7 road; January, 8 home and 6 road; February, 6 home and 9 road; March, 9 home and 7 road; and April 5 home and 2 road.

The three Arena appearances by the NBA World Champion Philadelphia 76ers will be: Sunday, December 11; Thursday, January 5; and Thursday, April 5. The NBA's top collegiate pick, Ralph Sampson, will make his Milwaukee debut Wednesday, December 7. A single stop is to be made by NBA scoring champ and former Milwaukee Buck Alex English on Wednesday, November 30 with the Denver Nuggets. The Bucks play host to the Golden State Warriors for a Thanksgiving eve game on Wednesday, November 23.

The general rule of thumb for game times in the Milwaukee Arena is: Sunday through Thursday 7:30 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays 8:00 p.m. The exceptions are four dates to accommodate national television. Three of the games are on Sundays; January 15 (12 noon), February 12 and March 11 (both 1:30 p.m.) and one Tuesday game with a starting time of 7:00 p.m. Refer to the enclosed schedule for correct times.

A total of 89 League games are scheduled for network television coverage during the regular season, the most in NBA history. CBS Sports will televise nine contests, including the All-Star game, while the USA and ESPN cable networks will show 40 games apiece — USA primarily on Thursday nights and ESPN primarily on Sunday nights.

In the friendly confines of the Milwaukee Arena, the Bucks have won over 70% of their games in the fifteen year history of the franchise.

NBA PLAYOFF FORMAT

CHANGES IN NBA PLAYOFF STRUCTURE

The NBA's Board of Governors, at its annual summer meeting in New York last June, adopted a resolution that makes two major changes in the NBA's playoff structure beginning with the 1983-84 season:

1. Sixteen teams shall qualify for the playoffs. There shall be eight teams from each conference, consisting of the two division champions and the six other teams in each conference with the best winning percentage during the regular season.

2. The first round of the playoffs shall be a best-of-five series (instead of best-of-three) with all succeeding rounds, including the NBA World Championship Series, being best-of-seven. All teams will participate in the first round; byes that formerly went to division winners have been eliminated.

Following are the playoff pairings:

TIE-BREAKING PROCEDURE FOR PLAYOFFS

Following is the tie-breaking procedure that is used to determine teams qualifying for the 1983 NBA Playoffs.

Two team ties:

1. Results of games against each other.
2. Winning percentage within own conference.
3. Winning percentage within own division (only if tied teams are in same division).
4. Winning percentage against playoff opponents in own conference.
5. Point differential in games against each other.
6. Point differential between offense and defense.

Multiple team ties:

1. Cumulative winning percentage in total games involving all tied teams.
2. Winning percentage within own conference.
3. Winning percentage within own division (only if tied teams are in same division).
4. Winning percentage against playoff opponents in own conference.
5. Point differential between offense and defense.

Notes:

1. Any ties involving the championship of a division are broken first.
2. If a multiple-team tie is reduced to a two-team tie at any point using the above criteria, that situation is then resolved by using the procedures outlined for two team ties.

Magic Number:

To determine the magic number add together the total games remaining for both clubs, divide by two, and subtract the number of games one club leads another by. That figure is for a tie, add one and you get the magic number.

BROADCAST INFORMATION

Radio broadcasts of all Milwaukee Bucks home and away games are originated by WTMJ, Milwaukee's NBA radio affiliate at 620 on the AM dial. Games are fed to a statewide network of over 20 stations throughout Wisconsin and upper Michigan.

Jim Irwin is the "Voice of the Bucks" and will be joined courtside by original Buck Jon McGlocklin for color commentary on 41 home games.

The Milwaukee Bucks and WTV-Channel 18 will televise 15 road games back to Milwaukee on WTV-Channel 18 during the 1983-84 regular season. The station will offer as many as five Bucks playoff games in addition.

"We're pleased to continue our relationship with Channel 18," said John Steinmiller, Vice President of Business Operations with the Milwaukee Bucks. "WTV has established itself as a TV leader in Milwaukee's pro sports coverage. We look forward to working with Channel 18 to give the fans the excitement and action of Bucks basketball right through the playoffs."

The 1983-84 television schedule will start in December with two hot contests. The first against the Philadelphia 76ers Wednesday, December 14th, at 7:00 p.m., and then the New Jersey Nets Wednesday, December 28th, at 6:30 p.m. January will feature the Washington Bullets (1/24), the Atlanta Hawks (1/25) and the start of a west coast swing with Golden State (1/31), Seattle (2/1) and Portland (2/3). The Houston Rockets (2/21) and the Dallas Mavericks (2/24) finish out the February games. The remaining six telecasts of the regular season are with New York (3/3), Philadelphia (3/14), Boston (3/16), New Jersey (3/21), Detroit (3/31) and Chicago (4/13).

Eddie Doucette and Jon McGlocklin will continue their courtside coverage for WTV, now in their eighth season of carrying Bucks basketball. As WTV Vice President and General Manager Michael Schuch commented, "The Milwaukee Bucks are a first class team and a first class organization. We are delighted to continue bringing exciting Bucks basketball to Wisconsin fans."

Doucette called the shots for the Bucks for twelve seasons both on radio and television before moving to San Diego and a staff announcing position with USA Network four years ago. He now concentrates on the televised games. McGlocklin is in his eighth season of color commentary, having moved behind the mike in 1976 after retiring as an active player.

In their 15 year history, the Bucks have gone to the playoffs eleven times and they have been the reigning Central Division Champions since the 1979-80 season. With a post season record like that, Bucks fans should look forward to playoff coverage on TV 18.

BUCKS SUMMER BASKETBALL CAMPS

Ron Blomberg — Director

The Milwaukee Bucks Summer Basketball Camps program is a unique basketball education program that operates week-long, day and boarding camps for young players aged 8 to 18 throughout the Midwest. In 1981 the summer camps became part of Medalist Industries' Sports Education Division. Ron Blomberg, formerly an administrative assistant and Director of the Milwaukee Bucks Summer Camps, joined the Medalist Sports Education staff and continues to direct the Bucks Summer Camps.

The Milwaukee Bucks originated the basketball camp concept in Wisconsin back in 1969. Since then the program has helped thousands of boys and girls aged 8-18 at campsites throughout the Midwest. The program operated at 15 sites and attracted more than 3,500 campers during 30 weeks of basketball instruction in 1983.

Behind the unique camp program is Blomberg who pioneered the summer basketball camp program in Wisconsin. His thorough understanding of the game coupled with his teaching talents are naturals for the camp program. Since their inception the camps have drawn over an estimated 38,500.

"It's very rewarding to work with the young people, Medalist, and the Bucks," says Blomberg. "We are developing good basketball players and Bucks fans for years to come."

Ron brings a long background of working with young people in sports to his job. After graduating from the University of Wisconsin, where he played varsity basketball for three years, he coached for six years at Peshtigo High School, capturing three basketball championships.

He coached 12 years at Brookfield Central High School and had six conference champions. His 1964-65 team finished fourth in the Wisconsin State tournament.

When the Bucks came to town, he teamed with Eddie Doucette on broadcasts and became known as "The Professor" for his insightful analysis of strategy and defenses. He still serves as a backup on the Bucks broadcasting team and occasionally steps behind the mike for other pro, college and high school sports.

Blomberg is the father of two sons and two daughters and has five grandchildren.

Sportraits Incorporated is a division of Milwaukee Professional Sports and Services which specializes in original sports artwork. Sportraits innovates commercial sports art projects. The corporation is based upon the talent of one of the nation's foremost artists and illustrators, George W. Pollard. Among the commercial ventures of Sportraits are player action portraits, original oil portraits of athletes, promotional items and montage posters.

MECCA'S GEOMETRIC COURT

Designed by Robert Indiana

The design on the court you see before you was developed by Robert Indiana. Indiana has said of himself, "I am an American painter of signs charting the course. I would be a people's painter as well as a painter's painter."

Succinctly he has explained his aims, and at the same time the reasons for his success, of which there can be no doubt. Since his first art show in 1960, Mr. Indiana's art has been seen and acclaimed internationally. The floor design along with LeRoy Nieman's "Basketball Superstars" painting for the 1977 All-Star Game in Milwaukee is the second major piece of art nationally recognized to have originated from Milwaukee.

Robert Indiana has established a lasting reputation as an artist who paints America. He paints about his country, its people, and about himself; as well as about the traditions and cultures we all know. Because his art speaks of the nature of our land and the American people, Robert Indiana is destined to be among the great American masters such as Winslow Homer, Thomas Eakins, and Edward Hooper.

Indiana is one of the leaders of the Pop Art movement of the 1960's and 70's. The trademarks of his art are the lettered signs, directional symbols, commercial illustrations, precise shapes, and intensely active colors. His art has been referred to as American as apple pie. He deals with signs of life in both vocabulary and form. Like highway signs, his paintings are geometric shapes with bright, bold numbers and letters upon them. LOVE is perhaps his most famous series of paintings.

Claiming the same hometown as former Buck Kent Benson in New Castle, Indiana, Mr. Indiana's works are on display across the country, and such institutions as the Carnegie Institute of Arts in Pittsburgh, the Chicago Museum of Contemporary Art, the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, Yale and Princeton Universities, and the Milwaukee Art Center all own works by Indiana. Previously Indiana has been commissioned to redesign the U.S. one cent piece by ART IN AMERICA, to create a mural for the New York State Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, and by the United States Government to design a Special Stamp for Someone Special in the denomination of 8 cents and issued originally in Philadelphia in 1973 to name a few prominent works.

Robert Indiana has lived and worked in New York since 1954.

The court itself is the same that has been in use during past seasons. Before being painted, it was completely refinished and sealed. Indiana did not actually paint the court, that task was contracted to a local sign painting company. Indiana signed the court of the southwest corner with a can of spray paint and a specially prepared stencil. Mr. Indiana also designed the banners that hang above the upper parquet around the Arena. The colors will also be picked up in the outer lobbies as MECCA plans to refurbish those facilities. Total cost of the project approaches $40,000 with a portion of that to be recouped by the sale of banners and posters similar to those in the Arena.

THE SNAZZIEST COURT IN HISTORY — MECCA'S BASKETBALL FLOOR

The MECCA basketball floor is a work of art. Literally. It was designed in 1977, when MECCA commissioned internationally known artist Robert Indiana to create a graphic design suitable for a basketball playing surface. The idea was to brighten up the MECCA Arena, and create a visual symbol for the three buildings of the Milwaukee Exposition and Convention Center and Arena, MECCA—the Arena, built in 1950, where tonight's/this afternoon's game is being played, the original MECCA Auditorium, built in 1909 and the new MECCA Convention Hall, built in 1974.

The MECCA basketball floor represents the first time in the history of either art or athletics that a serious work of art has been applied to a sports playing surface.

For a $27,500 fee, Indiana created the floor design, plus a series of 14 matching banners. Cost of labor and paint to carry out the design was $5,000. Thus a total cost of $32,500.

The artist also granted MECCA the right to use his design as a new logo, a graphic identity for the sports and convention complex. The design has been a springboard for interior redecorating in the Arena. Indiana's colors—blue, gold and red, fill the corridors, walls and balconies of the building. Flags, banners, and posters hang through the Arena, in lobbies, on walls, at concession stands. Limited edition serigraphs are available for sale, as well as souvenir posters.

Of all artists, Robert Indiana was the ideal choice for the project. As a leader of the Pop Art movement in the 1960's, Indiana's work is noted for its strong geometric design, its bright colors and exciting symbolism. His most famous work is his design of the word "LOVE" painting and postage stamp. Indiana's current paintings sell for approximately $35,000, thus making the basketball floor, his largest work, a bargain.

The floor is typical of Indiana's style. Its colors are vivid and contrasting. Most of the floor is painted gold, the free throw lanes are red, flanked by light orange wings. The center circle is enclosed in a diamond of orange with "MECCA" spelled out in blue letters around the jump circle. Symbolism is evident in the choice of some colors—Bucks green and Marquette blue. And when you view the floor at a distance, you can see that the letter "M" is formed by the gold areas on the court. "M" for MECCA, and Milwaukee. The Artwork is signed by Indiana—his seal and the year 1977 are painted on the lower southwest corner.

The floor has all the regulation lines and circles required by both the National Basketball Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, including the semi-circle for the NBA three point shot, which was instituted in 1979. When Indiana designed the floor in 1977, he was aware that the NBA might change the rule, so he created a design that could adapt to the change.

Milwaukee is proud to be an innovator. The skeptics who raised questions at first, have become believers. After playing on the court, the Milwaukee Bucks said they were happy with the new playing surface. John Steinmiller, Bucks Director of Business Operations, said, "We heard nothing but compliments from visiting teams and media."

Marquette University placed the floor design on the cover of the Marquette Warriors Milwaukee Classic program in 1978. The Milwaukee Journal's Insight magazine used fisheye photographs of the floor with a story on the Bucks 1978 preview.

The floor won an Award of Excellence from the Milwaukee Art Commission, indicating acceptance by Milwaukee's local art community.

And a survey done by MECCA's advertising agency showed that articles in Time magazine, Sport magazine, national television coverage and newspaper stories in 48 newspapers have given MECCA over $200,000 worth of free coverage in the first year after the floor's unveiling in 1977.

Because the floor is a genuine work of art, it can reach an estimated value of $100,000 as time passes. So MECCA's new asset is actually an investment, a real inflation-beater.

And it is easy to maintain. The painted surface is buffed and coated with a durable sealer, which reduces scuff marks and gives the floor its glossy finish.

Has the world's first designed basketball floor accomplished what it was meant to do? MECCA President Robert O. Ertl answers, "Already we've gone beyond our goals for the floor. All of us at MECCA are very pleased. I've been to conventions throughout the country, and people are always asking me if I have anything to do with the basketball floor. I say yes, that it is a part of our total MECCA complex. The floor practically paid for itself, too, with publicity, souvenirs and the sale of serigraphs based on the design. It's one of the best investments we've ever made."

BUCKS HISTORY — THE FIRST DECADE

Kareem and Commissioner Kennedy

Robinson and Charlie Paulk. Just prior to the start of the 1970-71 season, Bob Boozer and Lucius Allen were acquired from Seattle for Don Smith.

With Kareem, Robertson, McGlocklin, Dandridge and Smith forming the starting five and Boozer, Allen and Dick Cunningham providing backup, the Bucks ran away with the Midwest Division in the newly aligned four division league setup. The Bucks won 66 and lost only 16 games, in the process setting six league records; home wins, 34; road wins, 28; field goal percentage, .509; field goals, 3972; and assists, 2249. In a playoff competition the Bucks dispatched San Francisco and Los Angeles in five game series and then blasted Baltimore four straight for the World's Championship, only the second time in league history that the title series ended so quickly. In winning the World's Championship, the Bucks had come further, faster, than any expansion team in the history of major professional sports.

In 1971-72 the Bucks made the playoffs for the third straight year, winning the Midwest Division for the second year in a row. The Bucks elevated Wayne Embry to the general manager post and named William Alverson, a legal advisor to the club since its beginning, president in March, 1972.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar earned the league's MVP honor for the second straight year, averaging 34.8 points per game and leading the NBA in that department. The Bucks found defense of their World Championship title difficult. The Bucks disposed of Golden State in five games. The "super series" for the Western Conference championship matched the Bucks against the Los Angeles Lakers, a contingent that had run a 33 game winning streak during the season before being derailed by the Bucks on January 9. The Bucks battled the Lakers in six exciting games before failing four games to two.

The Bucks completed the 1972-73 season with a 60-22 record, the only NBA team in history to post sixty or more wins in three consecutive seasons. The sixty wins were posted despite an unusual season which found the Bucks plagued by injuries. Coach Larry Costello had his full roster available for barely more than half of the 82 game schedule. The Bucks finished the year with an NBA record of 14 straight victories to end the season, and entered the first round of the playoffs against Golden State. Possibly wearied by the whirlwind of winning the 14 games and the final race with the Lakers for the Western Conference title, the Bucks were surprised by a deep Golden State Team, and fell 4-2 in the opening round.

The Bucks were one game short of their fourth consecutive season with 60 regular season wins or more in 1973-74, finishing the season with a 59-23 record. Numerous injuries during the season often put the Bucks in a manpower shortage situation, but the club rallied to offset the absence of various players at different times of the year. The most serious injury sidelined Lucius Allen for the last few games of the season and all of the playoffs. Allen tore a cartilage in his knee in a game March 15 in Detroit, and underwent surgery the following day. The Bucks again topped the Midwest Division and eliminated Los Angeles 4-1 in the playoffs and dispatched Chicago without delay 4-0. In the championship round against Boston, the Bucks faced a troublesome press that continually dogged their game. The series was highlighted by a double-overtime sixth game which the Bucks won in Boston, to knot the series at 3-3. In the NBA Championship round's final seventh game, the Bucks were defeated by the Celtics 102-87.

In 1974-75 the Bucks endured what might have been their most frustrating season on record. A pre-season broken hand kept Kareem Abdul-Jabbar sidelined for the first sixteen games of the season and the club was 3-13, putting themselves too far behind Midwest Division rivals to ever recover. A mid-season knee injury to All Star guard Jim Price sidelined him for the last half of the season. Kareem, Price and Bob Dandridge were named to the All Star team, the first time in club history that three members had been named to the honor squad. Although the Costello trademark of defense was upheld (the club's allowance of 100.7 points per game was the fifth best in the league), their 38-44 record put them in last place in the Midwest Division. The club's longest winning streak of the year was five games, and the team stayed in contention for the wild card playoff berth until the last week of the season. The Bucks lost 18 games during this fretful year by five points or less, and 11 of those losses were by three points or fewer. Kareem was third in the NBA in scoring while Bob Dandridge finished 18th with a 19.9 point per game clip.

Abdul-Jabbar

Kareem and Big O

On June 16, 1975 the Bucks executed one of the most momentous trades in pro basketball history by sending Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and reserve center Walt Welsey to the Los Angeles Lakers in exchange for center Elmore Smith, guard Brian Winters, and two All-American rookies, David Meyers and Junior Bridgeman. The Milwaukee Bucks entered the 1975-76 season with a new, young running team, perhaps the youngest in the NBA.

The young talent faltered at first, losing the first five games of the season before posting a win over Detroit on November 4, 1975. As the season progressed, all four players obtained from Los Angeles for Abdul-Jabbar proved to make important contributions. Smith became a consistent performer at center, leading the team in rebounding during the season with a 11.4 per game average. Brian Winters put his marksmanship to work to average over 18 points per game and make the NBA West All Stars. Winters started in all 78 games he played. Bridgeman played both guard and forward well, started in 19 games and averaged over 20 minutes per game. Meyers showed outstanding rebound potential, banging the boards hard in 34 starts at the strong forward slot. Slowed by a knee injury, he rallied to have an outstanding playoff series against Detroit.

The Bucks posted a 38-44 record in 1975-76, identical to that achieved by the Los Angeles Lakers and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Bob Dandridge was named to the NBA West All Stars and had his best season ever, averaging 21.5 points per game while ranking among the top ten scorers in the league. The Bucks finished first in the Midwest Division for the fifth time in eight seasons. The Milwaukeeans were beat in the first round of the best-of-three playoff series 2-1 by Detroit. Coach Larry Costello signed a new two year pact just prior to the playoffs. In the 1976 college draft the Bucks selected Indiana All American and U.S. Olympian Quinn Buckner in the first round.

The 1976-77 season saw a major shakeup within the organization. Just 18 games into the season Larry Costello resigned as Head Coach and Don Nelson took over the reigns. Other changes came about involving the club's management structure. A group headed by James F. Fitzgerald, William J. Blake and J. P. Cullen and Son Corporation purchased 361,000 outstanding shares of Milwaukee Professional Sports and Services common stock. Mr. Fitzgerald became Chairman of the Board and President of the corporation. Wayne Embry, formerly General Manager of the club, became a consultant thus relinquishing his duties on a day-to-day basis. What were formerly Embry's duties were then split between Don Nelson who handles player personnel matters and John Steinmiller who was promoted to Director of Business Operations in charge of the day-to-day functions of the club. On the court Bob Dandridge turned in a solid performance averaging 20.8 points over the season. Brian Winters and Junior Bridgeman also averaged in double figures as did Sven Nater who was traded to Cleveland which gave Milwaukee the first round draft choice they used to obtain Marques Johnson. Record-wise the 1976-77 season was a meager 30 wins against 52 losses. But to offset that mark was perhaps the best draft by any professional team in history. Behind the direction of Rick Sund, Don Nelson, and Wayne Embry the club drafted and subsequently signed three first round choices in Kent Benson, Marques Johnson, and Ernie Grunfeld. John Killilea, once a scout for the Bucks and more recently assistant coach of the Boston Celtics, joined Don Nelson in the coaching ranks as assistant coach and assistant Director of Player Personnel.

Bob Dandridge

The 1977-78 season parlayed an exceptional draft of Benson, Johnson, and Grunfeld along with veterans Bridgeman, Buckner, Meyers, and Winters into an exciting season for a young team that as of yet did not have valuable playoff experience. Milwaukee finished the regular season with a 44-38 record. The fate of the playoff hopeful Bucks hinged upon Seattle beating Golden State on the final game of the 902 game NBA regular season schedule. The scene was a frustrating one for the Bucks as players, coaches, and fans alike stood anxiously by listening to the radio for a special play-by-play feed of the Sonics-Warriors game. Everyone felt helpless as their fate rested with a game they weren't playing. Seattle defeated Golden State sending the Bucks to pack the bathing suits in Milwaukee to head for Phoenix. Milwaukee swept the Suns 2-0 in the mini-series advancing to the Midwest Division final. It took Denver a tough seven games and the home court advantage to defeat Milwaukee and end a championship dream for the "Green and Growing" Bucks.

The image the Bucks created that year was one of youth and hope. The first full season under Don Nelson saw some changes, not all of which were on the court. The Bucks adopted their new familiar three-toned green striping on their uniforms and other paraphernalia, came out with a 45 record entitled Green and Growing, and numerous other exciting concepts. The result of all this could be felt at the gate where the Bucks averaged 10,711.15 fans (.97012%) to top their all time attendance records. Also that year the Bucks set an all time NBA record winning eight overtime games.

In the next season, 1978-79, everyone expected Milwaukee to surpass their successes of the previous year. What with the core of the 1977-78 team intact, it was an easy assumption to make. But before the season began a vital cog on the Bucks club was lost. Alex English went to the Indiana Pacers via the free agent market. Then Dave Meyers was lost for all 82 games of the regular season due to a back injury. Those losses coupled with a few key injuries, saw the Bucks reversing their 44-38 record of the prior year to 38-44 and missing a playoff berth.

There were some bright spots however. Marques Johnson was named to the NBA All-Star team receiving more fan votes than any other player in the Western Conference. Later, Johnson was named to the NBA All-League team as a first team forward. Marques finished third in the NBA in scoring with a 25.6 average which was highest among all forwards and centers in the league. Junior Bridgeman finished the season with a 15.5 average, tops among all regular sixth men in the league. Kent Benson improved greatly over his rookie campaign while Brian Winters had his best scoring season ever. The Bucks 38-44 record placed them tied at third with Indiana in the Midwest Division. The club came on strong towards the end and won 16 of their last 26 games (.615%) including 6 wins in their last 9 road games. Milwaukee also shattered the NBA assist record with 2,562 on the year for a 31.2 average. The total attendance mark of 443,926 broke all the records set one season before. The marks include 32 sellouts, an average of 10,827, and a capacity of 99%.

The Bucks rebounded with another Midwest Division title during the 1979-80 campaign, posting a 49-33 record to squeeze out the Kansas City Kings by two games. The title qualified Milwaukee for its eighth playoff appearance in the club's twelve year history. It was a season of highs and lows as the Bucks sprinted to an early lead with an NBA high of ten consecutive victories only to lose six straight in December to close the cushion. Compounding the losing skid was the sidelining of Quinn Buckner with a recurring hamstring problem. By January the division lead swayed to Kansas City.

The All-Star break, highlighted by Marques Johnson's second straight starting role for the west squad, marked a turnaround for Milwaukee as Detroit dealt big Bob Lanier to the Bucks for Kent Benson and a number one draft choice. Lanier's inside scoring punch combined with Marques Johnson's outside touch vaulted the club into the winner's circle of 11 of the next 13 contests. All told, the club went 20-6 following the break and reclaimed the division lead for good in mid-March. Defense played a major role in that comeback, forcing the second place Kings into a NBA season low 72 points February 24 and Golden State into a League low third quarter total of 10 points March 8.

Milwaukee drew defending champion Seattle in the playoffs, eventually falling in the seventh and final contest at the Kingdome. The series was marked by an NBA record crowd (40,172) in Game #5 and a Bucks' record-low first half point production (35) in Game #6. Games #1 and #2 were both highlighted by overtime play, the clubs each taking one contest. Seattle went on to play the eventual NBA champions Los Angeles Lakers for the Western Conference Championship.

The Bucks finished the 1980-81 season with a 60-22 record to become the 19th team in the history of the NBA to reach the magical 60 win plateau. It marked the fourth time in 13 seasons the club won 60 or more games. That record was attained by matching the club record for home court wins set during the championship year of 1970-71 with a 34-7 mark. On the road the club posted a 25-16 record, the best in eight seasons by Milwaukee and second to Boston in 1980-81. Also, Milwaukee became the 17th team in NBA history to lose no more than two games consecutively. Streaks were common for the team during the season. They ran off 10 in a row early in the season, 11 straight road games, and 16 in a row in the Arena. Also on the numbers front, the Bucks averaged 113.1 ppg — tops in the Eastern Conference — and allowed 105.9 ppg for an average margin of victory of 7.2 points per game. By virtue of their 60-22 record, the Bucks ran away with the Central Division title while earning a first round playoff bye.

Philadelphia earned the right to meet Milwaukee in the playoffs. For the Bucks it proved to be a virtual replay of previous playoff series under the Nelson regime. The club again was without the home court advantage and lost in the seventh game of the series to Philadelphia in the Spectrum by one point.

The Bucks captured their third straight division title ending the 1981-82 season with a 55-27 mark to top the Central Division. It marked the second straight Central Division title and third consecutive division title. It was also the second straight year Milwaukee posted the largest season-ending division lead in the NBA (13 games). To have such a successful season, Milwaukee had to overcome such adversities as an 18 game holdout by All-Star Marques Johnson at the start of the season and weather the storm of 114 player games missed due to injury necessitating 15 different starting lineups. Sidney Moncrief was unwrapped and his performance landed him a berth on the All-Star squad. Center Bob Lanier played in all but eight games and recorded more minutes played than all but two teammates. He too was named to the All-Star squad. Statistically, Milwaukee's 5.5 ppg winning margin ranked third in the League, 102.9 points defensively was 4th in the NBA, .505 team FG% was second best of any Milwaukee team, and a mid-season skein of 12 straight set a then NBA season mark.

Again Philadelphia earned the right to meet Milwaukee in the playoffs, but this time the short-handed Bucks succumbed to the Sixers in six games. Philadelphia went on to win the Eastern Conference championship before losing to the Los Angeles Lakers for the NBA title.

A fourth straight division title and four game sweep over the Boston Celtics highlighted the 1982-83 season for Milwaukee. Although injuries created a lot of shuffling of lineups, NBA Coach of the Year Don Nelson guided the team to a 51-31 record. Sidney Moncrief was named the NBA Defensive Player of the year and also to the All-League team while leading the club with a 22.5 scoring average. Teammate Marques Johnson, named to the All-Star team along with Moncrief, was a big plus to the Bucks, hitting for 1,714 points to lead the team. Winning 31 of 41 home games, Milwaukee ranked fourth in the League defensively yielding 102.2 ppg. The club hit .489% from the floor and .753% from the line. The Bucks set a franchise record blocking 532 opponent's shots and committed an all-time low 1,421 turnovers on the season. Due to the record low number of Milwaukee turnovers, a new opponent's season low for steals of 623 was established.

After the sweep over Boston, Milwaukee faced eventual NBA Champions Philadelphia in the finals of the Eastern Conference playoffs. The Bucks could only take one win from the 76ers but that was the lone loss suffered by Philly in the playoffs. Johnson again led the way during the second season averaging 22 points per contest.

REBOUND — Highlights From The 1982-83 Season

CENTRAL DIVISION RACE

The Bucks captured their third straight Central Division title and at the same time won their fourth consecutive division crown as they were Midwest Division Champions in 1979-80. The most the Bucks were out of first place in the division this season was 1-1/2 games, the last being on November 16 behind Detroit. On November 25 the Bucks took a 1/2 game lead over the Pistons and after dropping into a tie on November 27 took another 1/2 game lead on December 3 with a 115-113 conquest of the Boston Celtics and never relinquished the lead the rest of the season. The largest bulge was 10-1/2 games which they built over Atlanta on February 25 through February 28 and again on March 16. On March 30, Philadelphia defeated Atlanta 120-113 to eliminate the Hawks from the Central Division race and clinch the division for the Bucks.

MONCRIEF & JOHNSON GLITTER IN ALL-STAR CLASSIC

Marques Johnson and Sidney Moncrief helped lift the East All-Stars to a 132-123 victory in the 33rd annual mid-season classic before a sellout throng of 17,505 at the Forum in Inglewood, California on February 13. Participating in his fourth All-Star game in six seasons, Johnson played 20 minutes, scored 7 points, claimed 2 rebounds and handed out 2 assists as the second substitute for the East. Moncrief, making his second straight appearance as an All-Star, was the first player to come off the East bench and turned in an impressive 23 minutes as he scored 20 points including a soccer style head shot a la Pele. Sid also had six steals, 4 assists, 5 rebounds, blocked a shot and shut down Magic Johnson in the final 4-1/2 minutes. For his efforts, Moncrief finished third in the balloting for the game's Most Valuable Player award.

BIG O — FIRST BUCK INDUCTED INTO HALL OF FAME

The Big O—Oscar Robertson.

The nickname and the name both represent pro basketball greatness.

There are a few other players in the history of the National Basketball Association who warrant rating with the Big O in the category of greatness: Wilt Chamberlain, Kareem Abdul Jabbar, John Havlicek, Elvin Hayes, Jerry West, Bill Russell, Elgin Baylor and perhaps a handful more. But Oscar Robertson was, and probably always will be, the best all-around guard in the history of the game.

No guard has ever scored more points, made more field goals, played more minutes, connected on more free throws, dished out more assists, played in more All-Star games, or been selected to more All-NBA teams than the Big O. In short, it simply boggles the mind to think that there will ever be another player, let alone a guard, who could do it all as Oscar could.

Oscar Palmer Robertson is truly a legend living in his own time, and a century from now, the name Oscar Robertson—the Big O—will most likely still be the standard by which all basketball players will be measured.

On April 28, 1890, in the annual ceremony conducted at the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Massachusetts, the inevitable occurred—the Big O was unanimously inducted into the Hall on the first ballot in his first year of eligibility. Thus, Robertson became the first Milwaukee Buck to be enshrined in the Hall of Fame.

As memorable of an event as it was for Oscar, today, as he looks back, he's not quite sure how he was put into the Hall. "It probably sounds kind of funny, but I don't even know who does the voting to induct players into the Hall," said Robertson. "I don't know who voted me in. It's a funny thing—like it's a secret as to who picks the players."

While it may be a secret as to how he got into the Hall, there is certainly no secret as to why the Big O got in.

A 12-time NBA All-Star, Oscar was named the League's Most Valuable Player three times. Robertson was also a three time All-American at Cincinnati University. Although the 6'5" picture of grace never was on a national championship team, his Cincinnati Bearcats had successive seasons of 25-3, 26-4 and 28-2 records.

Starting his glorious pro career in the 1960-61 season with the Cincinnati Royals, Robertson went on to become the game's most admired performer. "He was the only player who gave a clinic every time he stepped onto the floor," said a veteran NBA observer.

"Oscar will go down in history as one of the true great guards that ever played the game," said Boston Celtics General Manager Red Auerbach. After a long career with Cincinnati, Robertson was traded to the Milwaukee Bucks where in 1971 he helped the team to the NBA World Championship.

Big O scored hit 25,000th career point while playing for the Bucks in a game against the New York Knicks December 1, 1972 in Milwaukee. In 14 pro seasons he scored 26,710 points and established the all-time record for assists in the NBA (9,887) and for Milwaukee (2,156).

Today, Oscar is President and owner of the Oscar Robertson Company, a commercial construction firm based in Cincinnati, Ohio. He also purchased a chemical company in the Cincinnati area last summer.

The Big O says he gets back to Milwaukee "quite often" for both business and pleasure. "I met a lot of very nice people in Milwaukee while I played there, and we keep in touch." Robertson is also the national representative for the Pepsi Hot Shot Competition, a youth basketball skills program conducted nationally. Oscar, his wife Yvonne, and their family reside just outside of Cincinnati.

MILWAUKEE BUCKS BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Several years ago, Bucks owner James Fitzgerald made what he terms a "$1 million decision" — although it probably cost just a bit more than that.

The decision was to bring the best possible basketball team to Milwaukee by spending a bit more than the ledger might normally justify in a small market with the League's smallest arena. The Bucks may have yet to win an NBA championship with the group that has been assembled, but few could argue that Fitzgerald has lived up to his commitment to top-flight basketball... without counting the costs.

Yet the bottom line for any businessman is the tally line on a ledger sheet. Fitzgerald may just be hooking up a vital lifeline that will keep the Milwaukee franchise financially viable.

Fitzgerald, owner of Total TV, headquartered in Janesville, is forming the Wisconsin All-Sports Network. The network will package many Bucks away games plus Brewers and other professional and college teams, both in Wisconsin and throughout the Midwest. It would be a premium service offered through cable TV at a monthly rate.

He sees the funds made from All-Sports as the lifeblood to keep the Bucks competitive with cities like New York and Chicago; facilities like Los Angeles' Forum and Seattle's Kingdome.

Fitzgerald will even admit that the success of the cable venture is crucial to the success of the Milwaukee franchise, adding, "To a franchise like Milwaukee, if we harbor any dreams and thoughts of a championship, we've got to develop other sources of revenue."

All-Sports was slated to start in September, showing games between the Brewers and Baltimore Orioles to fans in Janesville and those purchasing the programming through such services as SelecTV. However, Fitzgerald said at the end of summer that the network would probably not start until March, so more planning and preparation can be accomplished. It should pick up in time for the end of the season and the playoffs.

Meanwhile, Fitzgerald will plan marketing strategy with Group "W" Westinghouse, which has joined in the venture. And Channel 18 in Milwaukee, WVTM, will still telecast 15 games to whet the fans appetite for home stands.

On the brighter side, the owner hopes for a profitable year. Besides, he points out, "It's not really the economic equation that will win or lose a championship. In economic terms, we are not hindered from putting the best product on the floor."

The acquisition of key players like Bob Lanier and Dave Cowens and the willingness to pay superstar wages to bona fide superstars is the best proof of that. With all the financial headaches a franchise can present, not to mention lost opportunities at more lucrative investments, it's obvious that something besides profits motivates Fitzgerald.

He says, "The glib, quick answer, to why anyone owns a team is 'ego'. But the desire for competition is the real answer. In sports, you know how you came out each time. You either have won or lost. In business, it's not quite the same."

Fitzgerald says the key injuries the Bucks suffered last season prevented them from being as competitive as he believes they can, and will, be.

"Plus, Philadelphia was motivated to an extremely high level. Just a whole bunch of things came together. But the history of the League shows that they probably will not be able to hold that intensity.

Fitzgerald is also encouraged with the future of the League and pleased with NBA players because of the new salary structures which will take effect next season.

"Still, there's no question that if the pay TV-cable (programming) doesn't work, all cities the size of Milwaukee will have problems. And I'm not just talking basketball, but baseball and other sports," the Bucks owner said.

The Bucks also have been considering alternatives to the limited and unexpandable Milwaukee Arena. And Fitzgerald says the Bucks picture would be brighter in Milwaukee if the city and/or county developed a sports office, with a sports commissioner, or "czar," as Fitzgerald calls the post. That would insulate the Bucks from the politicians who might allow politics to affect the health of the franchise.

Such tensions and hassles, inherent to an owner of a professional sports franchise, undoubtedly built up since he took control of the franchise leadership in November, 1976, and likely contributed to the heart attack he suffered in November, 1981. But his health has gradually improved since. He hopes to attend more games than his doctor recommended last season.

"The ol' ticker is fine," Fitzgerald said. "I've been playing a lot of golf. I'm off the cigarettes and I honest-to-God feel better than I have in years. I guess I just was sick and didn't know it."

His presence seven rows behind the Bucks bench, and later in the locker room, is certainly welcomed by everyone involved in the operation.

His newfound health is undoubtedly a cause for happiness in the Fitzgerald clan, consisting of wife Marilyn, daughters Ellen, Carolyn, and Marcia, and sons Mike, Brian, and James, Jr.

Bucks fans also should find happiness in a robust James Fitzgerald... after all, NBA owners making $1 million decisions need all the health they can find.

If you had to name any one person who symbolizes the continued high quality of the Milwaukee Bucks and their relatively unique success in such a short time, the name Wayne Embry would probably come to mind.

As much as anyone in the history of the Bucks, Embry has symbolized the class and quality of the Bucks through his own personal integrity and dignity.

Recently, fans have not always known of his contributions to the club as he works behind the scenes. The good-natured, 6'8", former Buck center, still at a svelte 250 pounds, is available to the Bucks whenever they need him in his capacity as consultant and vice-president. One of those times came during the crucial negotiations with Marques Johnson that eventually lead to his multi-year contract.

As a former player himself, Embry offers a unique insight into decisions that transcend business considerations and involve the product itself.

"I'm available to assist the owner and coaches," Embry said in describing his current status. "I'm getting involved in the planning and decision-making."

Embry has been involved in shaping the franchise in one way or another since its very inception. He was chosen by the Bucks in the 1968 expansion draft to fill the middle as center, so he had a very active hand at that point.

He retired after that year and initially balked at offers the Bucks made him to join the front office. He instead opted for a position as director of recreation in Boston, a city where he was a member of the Celtics title team the year before he joined the Bucks.

But the lure of round ball bounced him back to the Bucks in 1972 as assistant to the president. During that period, Embry made one of his most significant contributions to the franchise by luring Oscar Robertson away from the Cincinnati Royals. The "Big O" was the missing piece to the Bucks only NBA championship.

From 1972 until 1976, Embry was vice president and general manager of the Bucks. In 1977 he relinquished the title of general manager for consultant, but retained the vice president title and eventually was named to the team's Board of Directors.

Meanwhile, his business interests — and roots in the city — became — stronger. From 1971 to 1982, he was noted for owning and operating three McDonald's Restaurants, including the one behind the Milwaukee Arena. In December, 1982, he divested himself of that interest.

Embry occupies his time outside the Bucks as president of the Michael Alan Lewis Co. They are converters and fabricators of fiberboard, paper, insulation, and poly products mainly for the automobile industry. G. Heileman Brewing Co. recently hired him as a consultant.

Embry attributes his ability to make a smooth transition from the world of glitter and basketball to the less glamorous world of business and its different kind of hard work to "my ability to adjust my emotions."

He sees some of the other players of his day — and certainly some in today's troubled era — as being less able to handle those emotions.

Still, Embry says his major goal in his basketball work is "to help those young people succeed."

They could hardly do better than to emulate Embry.

He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Education from Miami University, in Oxford, Ohio, with a minor in Business Administration.

Besides the Bucks Board of Directors, he is on the boards of: Milwaukee Childrens Hospital; Junior Achievement of Southeastern Wisconsin; St. Mary's Hill Hospital; Athletes for Youth; Operation PUSH; the Medical College of Wisconsin; the Wisconsin Heart Association; and the Basketball Hall of Fame. He is also a national advisory council member for Special Olympics, belongs to the ABA-USA Olympic Basketball Games Committee, the Milwaukee County Cultural Committee, the Alpha Fraternity, and the committee appointed by U.S. Senator Robert Kasten to select federal judges.

He earned the Miami University Hall of Fame selection and a citation from the City of Boston for developing summer basketball leagues. He was also selected by the National Association of Basketball Coaches to the five-man Silver Anniversary Team, in 1983.

Other basketball related honors include being named captain of Miami's team from 1956 to 1958, being named All-Mid American Conference 1957-58 and Helms All-American in 1958.

He was captain of the Royals from 1962-66, after playing with them since 1958. Embry was with the Celtics from 1966 through 1968; the Bucks from 1968 to 1969, where he also served as captain.

Embry was named an NBA All-Star in 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964, and 1965.

He is still an all-star on the Bucks team. . . the only charter member of the franchise who retains ties here besides Jon McGlocklin. Joining Embry in making his life here are wife Terri, and children Debby, 23, Jill, 22, and Wayne, Jr., 20.

Raw, inexperienced, enthusiastic and willing like heck to learn. This is how one might have best described John Steinmiller when he joined the Milwaukee Bucks staff fresh out of Marquette University in 1970 as a full-time administrative assistant. In other words, Steinmiller was low man on the Bucks' concise version of the corporate ladder.

But time has a way of changing things.

Tactful, experienced, ambitious and still willing to learn. This is how one might best describe John Steinmiller today, as he handles his role as Vice-President-Business Operations with the same organization he joined 13 short years ago. In other words, Steinmiller virtually runs the business for Bucks owner Jim Fitzgerald.

While Steinmiller may still be interested in learning, there really isn't anything John doesn't know about the Bucks organization. Steinmiller's introduction to the hard work of the sports business came while he was in his senior year at Marquette University, when he handled a variety of chores on a part-time basis in the Bucks office. After graduating from Marquette in 1970, with a bachelor's degree in journalism, John became an administrative assistant, handling duties ranging from ticket sales to publicity work.

In 1972, at the age of 22, he became the youngest publicity director in pro sports. He held that position with the Bucks until 1977 when he was promoted to handle the team's business operations. In 1980 he was named to his current position.

Steinmiller likes the variety and challenge of his job.

Ultimately, there always has to be a challenge in one's job and I have plenty," he said. "I constantly try to satisfy myself and others with the job I do. It gives me a daily dose of reality along with the highs and lows that come with winning and losing. In the long run, it helps me to get a hold on life and makes winning that much sweeter. Sports is not all flash and fun, there's the daily business and detail of it that requires an awful lot of hard work."

But hard work and difficult goals are something that John has come to grips with over the years thanks to a key ingredient in his make-up — ambition. Call it drive, call it persistence, call it what you will but ambition has paved the way for Steinmiller to the point where it would be only fitting as a replacement for his middle name.

"I have had to work harder than others in order to get what I wanted," John confesses while reflecting back to his childhood. "You have to be ambitious to survive. There's not going to be a lot given to you so you better go out and get your own."

Steinmiller has carried that philosophy into the everyday operations of the club — and has been quite successful with it. Considering that the Bucks play in the smallest arena in the NBA, and that Milwaukee is one of the smallest media markets among competing NBA teams, the Bucks continue to draw near capacity crowds each year and remain one of the more stable and respected organizations in basketball. That is something that John and his staff work hard to attain.

"Those record sellouts don't just happen spontaneously," he says. "We plan, project and sell with a record turnout in mind every season. I just think that you have to work as hard as possible, giving a maximum effort, and being aware of the No. 1 goal — being a winner. A winner on the court is always reflected in the front office. I try to impress upon all of our employees that their individual jobs are very important."

A native of Mt. Prospect, Illinois, John has become a very active member of the Milwaukee community. He has been secretary-treasurer of the Midwest Athletes Against Childhood Cancer (MAACC) Fund, a member of the Sales and Marketing Executives of Milwaukee and is a Board Member of the Big Brothers-Big Sisters program in town. Steinmiller also makes frequent appearances at service club meetings, banquets and other events as part of his job with the Bucks. John, his wife, Corinne, and their two year-old son, John Henry, live in Milwaukee.

Don Nelson
Head Coach and Director of Player Personnel

To say that Bucks' coach Don Nelson made the most out of difficult situation last year is a classic understatement.

In his seventh year as a head coach, Nelson took a big gamble before the season even started when he persuaded former teammate Dave Cowens to come out of retirement and play for the Bucks.

The rights to the former Celtic cost the Bucks popular Quinn Buckner, and the jury was still out on Nelson's move in the eyes of many fans.

Of course, it didn't help matters when Cowens, and veteran center Bob Lanier, and many other Bucks spent portions of the season on the injured list.

However, Nelson shuffled players in and out of the lineup like he was a chess player. He changed strategies depending on the combination of players he put on the court. The results were yet another divisional championship, the Bucks third straight 50-plus win season and a four game sweep of Nelson's former team, the Boston Celtics, in the first round of the NBA playoffs.

For his efforts, Nelson earned the NBA Coach of the Year Award and the admiration of just about everybody in the NBA who knows how tough pro basketball can be, even when you have a healthy team.

Nelson considered the season one of his toughest as a coach.

"It was tough simply because we had a lot of injuries," says Nelson, who also passed the 300-win milestone during the season. "There was a lot of patchwork that had to be done during most of the season. But, the team responded well."

Nelson downplays his role in the successful season.

"I just don't want to over-emphasize coaching because I think the players win games for you and without a consistent performance from 12 guys throughout the season we really wouldn't have a good year."

After a 14 year playing career, 11 years with the Celtics, Nelson understandably would have a good appreciation of the importance of players who give 100 percent. He did so while stringing together 465 consecutive games and scoring over 10,000 points.

Nelson was known as a hard-nosed player who was an important part of the Celtics' championship years.

He also was able to pick up some coaching pointers from one of the best, Red Auerbach, while at Boston.

"Of course, it helps to have played the game," Nelson says. "You have a better appreciation for what the players go through. Red of course was a big influence, although I think I've learned something from almost everybody I've come across in pro basketball."

Because of his close ties to Auerbach, it was just that more surprising when his former coach verbally attacked him after Nelson criticized the Celtics' Danny Ainge for rough play during the playoff series.

"We've made amends," Nelson laughs now. "I wrote him a letter and he wrote me one back. We've had some conversations since then and there's no problem at all."

Nelson's progress as a coach was accelerated rather drastically shortly after he signed on as an assistant to Larry Costello in 1976. Sixteen games into the 1976-77 season, Costello resigned, and Nelson suddenly was the head man.

"It wasn't what I had planned," Nelson recalls. "I wasn't sure that I was ready for a head position, but in a way it was good because it forced me to learn more quickly. I didn't have any time to think about it."

"Looking back, it was actually quite a break for me because a lot of people never get a chance to coach a professional team. It wasn't a matter of confidence with me, since I knew I could do the job and I would get better at it day by day. But, I did want to make sure that the Bucks thought I could do the job."

The Bucks have no doubt about it now. Nelson has developed the reputation as a coach with a team concept and one who has an eye on the future as well as the present.

While the signing of veterans like Cowens and other older players get the most attention, Nelson also has made it a habit of drafting players like Alton Lister, Paul Pressey and Randy Breuer. While considered projects of a sort, the young players have great potential and should prove Nelson's talent judgments accurate.

"My first year here we didn't have a good squad and we finished last. We built it up quicker than anybody thought, but those early years were tough ones for players, coaches, owners and everybody involved. I would like very much not to have to go through that again. Paul Pressey, Alton Lister and hopefully Randy Breuer can keep us from going through the entire rebuilding process."

A number of teams have expressed interest in wooing Nelson away from the Bucks, but at this point Nellie is content to stay in Milwaukee. For one thing, he has an excellent rapport with Bucks owner Jim Fitzgerald.

"I'd like to think it's that we're both honest guys that understand ourselves and the game of basketball," Nelson says of his relationship with Fitzgerald. "It's just been a very easy relationship and a very open one. He understands problems I have and I understand problems he has. So, there's no problem — there's never been a problem — and I don't anticipate there will ever be as long as we're sympathetic to each other."

"I was flattered that other teams were interested, but no, I did not really consider coaching elsewhere. I would say I was contacted, at least in a round about way, by all the teams that had a vacancy to see if I was interested.

"Those conversations didn't last very long because I really wasn't interested in leaving. The Bucks and Jim Fitzgerald have been very fair to me and I have no desire to leave."

Nelson, who was raised on a farm in the Midwest and attended the University of Iowa, also likes Milwaukee. "I've always liked Milwaukee. I'd like to make Milwaukee my home if that's possible. I'm not the kind of guy that's looking for greener pastures. As long as things are working for me I'm very content."

"I don't have a deadline as far as how long I'll coach. I'd like to make that decision year-to-year. There are a lot of factors that could influence a decision like that — my own self evaluation, the performance of my squad and so on."

But, for now, Don Nelson looks like a solid fixture as the Bucks' head coach . . . and the NBA Coach of the Year.

Mike Schuler
Assistant Coach

Fans looking to the Milwaukee Bucks bench this year will see a new member of the coaching brain trust — Michael H. Schuler, last year an assistant coach to Larry Brown of the New Jersey Nets.

Schuler, who admits he is aiming for a head coach's spot in the NBA soon, had several offers to choose from, but opted for the Bucks. He said that he sees absolutely "no negatives" in coming to the Milwaukee organization, where there might have been some second thoughts elsewhere.

There also seems to be very few negatives in Schuler's professional and college coaching portfolio either. Serving as references on Schuler's resume, besides Brown and other members of the Nets organization, are — Jerry Colangelo, Phoenix Suns general manager; Bob Bass, San Antonio Spurs general manager; NBA coaches John MacLeod, Phoenix; Cotton Fitzsimmons, Kansas City; and Bill Fitch, late of Boston and now of Houston; and college coaches Terry Holland, Ralph Sampson's mentor at the University of Virginia, and Bobby Knight, the redoubtable coach of Indiana University.

Did we forget to mention the legendary Jerry West, now general manager of the Los Angeles Lakers.

It could well be that Schuler might be the Bucks most important off-season acquisition despite a better than average draft. Yet, with all this recognition by his peers, Schuler's head does not seem inordinately large for the job he must accomplish.

"I want to help Nellie (Coach Don Nelson) in any way I can," Schuler offered in an interview at the start of the season. "I don't have all the answers, but I look on myself as a good basketball coach — both offensively and defensively. I've learned a little bit."

That learning has also continued throughout his adult career, beginning with his own roundball playing days as a star guard in his hometown of Portsmouth, Ohio, at Portsmouth High School.

Schuler attended Ohio University, in Athens, Ohio, where he played for Coach Tim Snyder, who had a strong influence on the young man. Schuler graduated in 1962, but returned to Ohio University after a three-year hiatus in high school coaching in Ohio, and a year with Bobby Knight's NIT-bound Army team in 1965.

Schuler was Snyder's assistant from 1966 through 1969. During that stint, the team made one trip to the NIT and held two Mid-American conference titles.

From 1969 to 1972, Schuler was head basketball coach at the Virginia Military Institute. He spent five years — 1972 to 1977 — at the University of Virginia. In 1976, Virginia won its only ACC Championship. In 1977, Virginia lost the championship game to North Carolina.

Schuler served from April 1977 to April 1981 as head basketball coach at Rice University. He was named Southwest Conference Co-Coach of the Year in 1980, when Rice had its winningest season of the previous decade . . . but still only placed sixth.

Schuler then joined Larry Brown with the Nets. The franchise enjoyed its two best seasons in the NBA so far, winning 44 games in 1981-82 and 49 games in 1982-83. He also coached the Nets Summer League Team in 1981 and 1982, finishing with a combined record of 25-5. The team won the championship in 1981 and went to the semi-finals in 1982.

This past summer, Schuler was head coach of a pre-draft team and also coached another summer league team.

Schuler said he was not discontent at New Jersey, but when Brown resigned as head coach in favor of the same spot for the University of Kansas, Schuler began to look to improve his position.

His contract extends through the 1985-86 season.

"I felt this was an opportunity for me to work with an entirely different type of team," Schuler said of Milwaukee. "The Nets were a very, very young team in my years there . . . a glorified college team, in ways. I wanted a lot of veterans to work with."

The future for the 42-year-old will involve tutelage under Coach Nelson, who Schuler sees as one of the League's best and most respected coaches. Hopefully, there is a head coaching position on the horizon. "Meanwhile, the most important thing is loyalty to the head coach — to assist him in all phases of the game. I want to help Nellie in any way."

Helping Schuler in his personal life are wife Gloria and daughters Kimberly, 19, and Kristin, 17.

Garry St. Jean Assistant Coach

Now in his third year on the Bucks bench, Assistant Coach Garry St. Jean holds undergraduate and masters degrees in Physical Education from Springfield College in Massachusetts and has completed course work toward a doctorate in education.

In February of 1981 St. Jean was named an assistant coach and added some coaching duties to his extensive pro and college scouting responsibilities. Garry's main responsibilities also include summer development camps, and rookie and fall training camps. St. Jean has worked with Nelson at various camps and clinics during the past 13 years. That association led to his linking up with the Bucks.

Since joining the Milwaukee staff, Garry says he's learned something about coaching just through watching Nelson. "I've learned a great deal since coming over in '81," said St. Jean. "Nellie has got such a knack of working with players. He earns their respect both on and off the court, because he's such a relentless worker. He's also a very honest person, and has the real desire to win. Nellie wants everyone — coaches and players — to work with each other, and to understand all aspects of the game. I've learned three things in particular — work hard, be honest and be loyal."

The New England native wouldn't mind becoming a head coach some day, but for the time being he's not preoccupied with the prospects of landing a top spot somewhere else in the League. As a matter of fact, St. Jean is quite satisfied right where he is at. "I feel very fortunate to be making a living in something I love. I'm with a great organization and working with great people. I'll just let time take its own course, and whatever happens, happens."

While attending Springfield, he captained both the basketball and soccer squads before a series of knee operations cut his athletic career short after his sophomore year. Upon graduating from Springfield, Garry returned to his hometown of Chicopee, Massachusetts, to take over the head basketball job at his alma mater, Chicopee High School. As a Chicopee prep player, he was named All-State in basketball and soccer and was named to Parade Magazine's top 500 basketball list. As a coach at Chicopee, he posted a 122-65 (.652) record over eight years. His teams qualified for the state high school tournament seven times.

A bachelor, St. Jean resides in an oceanfront beach house in Orleans, Mass., on Cape Code during the summer months. "I guess you could say I'm a naturalist — I'm wild about the ocean and the outdoors."

Jeff Snedeker
Trainer

Jeff Snedeker has kept very busy since becoming the Bucks' trainer and traveling secretary two seasons ago.

The Bucks have had their share of injuries in that time, and Snedeker has spent much of his time administering aid — physical and in some cases emotional.

"It's hard to explain why injuries happen, but we've definitely had our share," said Snedeker. "At times, some of the players can't help but get down a little when they're hurt, so it does help if you talk with them and give them encouragement at times."

In his 23 years of experience, Snedeker has developed a "bedside manner" to go along with his medical knowledge. He is the only pro trainer to have worked in three different professional sports and with two different world champions.

Before coming to the Bucks, he worked 14 years with the New York Jets in the National Football League, where he spent much of his time working on Joe Namath's famous knees. He served two years with the New York Cosmos of the NASL and a stint as the trainer for visiting teams at Madison Square Garden and a substitute trainer for the New York Knicks.

The possessor of a Master of Science degree in athletic training from Indiana University, Snedeker has continued to educate himself in his field by doing off-season research in the area of strength testing and flexibility at the Institute for Sports Medicine and Athletic Trauma at New York City's Lenox Hospital.

He also has served as a part-time lecturer in physical education at Barnard College in New York, while teaching graduate courses in sports medicine.

Snedeker owns the SPORT Clinic of Greater Milwaukee, 2979 North Mayfair Road, a special physical therapy clinic. He is a member of the American College of Sports Medicine, the National Athletic Trainers Association, the Eastern Athletic Trainers Association and the trainers association of the states of New York and Wisconsin.

In addition to some good medical advice, Snedeker also can give you some travel tips on hotels and other accommodations. He's learned those through his duties as traveling secretary for the team.

When he's not traveling with the Bucks, or working at his clinic, Snedeker can be found at his Whitefish Bay home with his wife, Joy, and four children, Cheryl, Connie, Karen and Kathy.

Bill King II
Director of Publicity

Bill King II, would likely be too modest to admit it, but in many ways he is the unseen face behind the headlines on many Bucks stories that we see and hear.

King is entering his seventh season as Milwaukee Bucks publicity director. A good part of his job centers on providing general information and minutiae to media reporters, who disseminate it to newspapers, magazines, and through the electronic media.

King is not exactly alone in his task. For the past four years, a computer system has been helping him analyze and provide statistics, both long and short-term. Some of it must be rifled off in seconds during tense moments of a contest. All of them are important time-savers to TV, radio, and beat reporters who need statistics fast.

King says the computer helps put his role "in the proper perspective. I know have more time for p.r. related matters."

"But it's the furthest we've been in the playoffs" in King's tenure "and we were really up for the challenge."

King, 28, married his wife, Shelley, last July. They have been busy setting up a home in Waukesha since, but the Bucks schedule might not allow him to spend many winter nights there. King says Shelley already understands she might become a frequent basketball widow because it's her husband's vocation. More typically, it's the husband's avocation instead.

King joined the Bucks in 1977 as one of the youngest publicists in all professional sports. Now, he is seventh in seniority in the League. During that time, King has visited NBA cities throughout the country. He has observed how other publicity operations function and he has borrowed the best from them while striving to eliminate some of the mistakes made by others.

"We're proud of the fact that despite having the smallest staff, we are constantly getting calls from other teams asking, how do the Bucks do this or that," says King.

Bea Westfahl
Ticket and Office Manager

Only Jon McGlocklin, Bucks Broadcaster, has as many years of service with the Milwaukee Bucks Organization as Ticket and Office Manager, Bea Westfahl. Both are entering their 15th season as integral members of the executive staff.

Mrs. Westfahl joined the Bucks' staff in November of 1969 after a nine-year stint with the Wisconsin State Fair Park. At the State Fair she headed the concessions and grandstand operations for the State of Wisconsin.

For the Bucks, Mrs. Westfahl is responsible for the nearly half million tickets processed through the office each season. Her position demands precise accounting procedures and a flair for dealing with the public, both of which she handles without missing a beat.

Under Mrs. Westfahl's guidance, a staff of seven juggles and sorts its way through the maze of ticket procedures created by the increasing demand and limited seating at each of the Bucks 41 home games. Responsibilities include assisting season ticketholders in the selection of their individual seats and providing personal attention to the holders of the nearly 5,500 season tickets. Also involved is the direction of over-the-counter, mail, phone and group orders, as well as coordinating the computerized Ticketron outlets.

Bea admits she gets some personal satisfaction from the fact that she is a woman ticket manager for a professional sports team. "No doubt about it," she said, "It's kind of neat. Plus, just the personal contact I have with people every day makes the job that much more enjoyable."

A lifetime Wisconsinite, born in Wauwatosa and raised in West Allis, Bea and her husband Don, a retired city fireman, live in Big Bend and are the parents of three sons and have two grandchildren. During the summer months, when Bea's office hours are less demanding, she enjoys the out-of-doors, especially time on Tichigan Lake. Bea's love for music often leads her to the piano where she finds relaxation in playing familiar favorites.

Chuck Reupert
Controller

While the Bucks' players are worrying about their shots from the baseline and free throw line, Chuck Reupert is keeping track of the team's bottom line.

As the team's controller, Reupert monitors the day-to-day financial condition of the franchise, and he says that overall the Bucks are healthy.

"This is a stable franchise," Reupert says. "It has good ownership and a good organization."

A self-professed "jock", Reupert came to the Bucks in February of 1971 from a local manufacturing firm, where he had served as a plant accountant for ten years.

His 13 years with the Bucks makes Reupert second in seniority among NBA controllers.

A native of Milwaukee, Chuck attended Boys Tech High School and the University of Wisconsin. He served as an infantry squad leader in Korea and was a third officer in the U.S. Maritime Service in World War II.

An experienced sports car builder and driver, Reupert races under the Milwaukee Bucks' banner. He is a former Class D racing champion for the Midwest area.

Chuck shares his automotive interests with his twin sons Mike and Mark. He and his wife Susie, and their ten year old son Sean, call Milwaukee their home.

Jim Irwin enjoys his life as the state's premier play-by-play broadcaster. In fact, entering this fall's broadcast duties with WTMJ — handling Green Bay Packer and Wisconsin Badger football and Milwaukee Bucks basketball — Irwin has compiled 39 sports seasons of combined broadcast duties. This remarkable total includes the past 14 years both with the Packers and Badgers, four seasons each with the Bucks and Wisconsin basketball, and three seasons calling the action for UWM basketball. And the near-four decade performance does not include the 13 years Irwin has served as a sports reporter, covering the Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament, the Indianapolis 500, and other major events.

A hectic pace maybe, but Irwin wouldn't trade his job for any other. "If I can continue to do play-by-plays, I'll be the happiest guy around." Irwin is currently in his fifth year behind the Bucks play-by-play microphone. "For me, doing Bucks games is just a breeze because they're such a good ball club. And you can go to the game anticipating winning and get all excited," said Irwin.

It's apparent that Jim enjoys the game and his job as sportscaster. Irwin is joined courtside by former Bucks All-Star Jon McGlocklin (who handles the home game color duties when not working for the USA cable sports network's basketball games). "My philosophy on sports, that I learned a long time ago, is that I'm a broadcast entertainer. The first aim I have in any broadcast is to be factual. The second is to be entertaining."

Probably no media figure in the state has gotten as close to the number of athletes that Irwin has over the years. Traveling with the Bucks has enabled Jim to become acquainted with the behind-the-scenes personalities of members of the club. Through this intimacy, he has formed his favorites . . . or those who seem to leave more of an impression than others.

"There's no question that Don Nelson is a class person," Irwin revealed. "He's cooperative and helpful. Nellie openly shares his opinions and feelings, and he's always fair in whatever he does. Among the players, Bob Lanier is a difficult person to get to know yet when you do, you find out he's a marvelous, sweet man. He really is a caring type of person. Junior Bridgeman is a very intelligent, and very nice person. I really shouldn't name any of the Bucks individually because they all fall into that category. The organization goes out and finds ball players that combine physical talent with intelligence and class."

Jim is a four-time recipient of the Wisconsin Sportscaster of the Year Award, and his voice has been associated with a number of different sports events since coming to Wisconsin in 1964. A native of Missouri, Irwin first arrived in the Badger state when he landed a job in Green Bay. Then in 1969, WTMJ offered him a job as color man alongside Ted Moore for Wisconsin Badger football broadcasts. When Moore left the following year, Irwin inherited the play-by-play and worked with Gary Bender until 1975 when Bender was hired by CBS.

Irwin also did play-by-play for UWM basketball from 1973 to '75, and called the action for Badger basketball from 1975 to '78. The Badger basketball broadcast duties were dropped when Irwin was selected to replace Eddie Doucette behind the Milwaukee Bucks microphone starting with the 1979-80 season. Jim had handled the radio broadcasts as early as 1977 whenever Doucette called a televised game.

In addition to his Bucks play-by-play responsibilities, Jim continues his morning sports broadcast, "Viewpoint." Heard at 7:45 a.m. on WTMJ radio during the Gordon Hinkley show, it is an insightful commentary regarding timely sports topics.

Irwin has had opportunities in bigger radio markets than Milwaukee, but insists that the only offer he would consider would be from a network. "I would have to consider a network possibility, but even that is lessening with cable television getting into so many of the sporting events. I've just had such a good job here at WTMJ, it's hard to think of anything that could top it."

A graduate of the University of Missouri, Jim served with the Army in Korea. He married his childhood sweetheart, Gloria, who writes documentaries for Channel 10 in Milwaukee. The couple has two children, Anne, 19, a sophomore at Wellesley College, and Jay, 16, a junior at Whitfish Bay High School. The Irwins reside in Whitfish Bay.

Jon McGlocklin
Radio/TV Color Analyst

Jon McGlocklin has become almost as adept at describing rainbow jumpers as he was shooting them on the court for 11 pro seasons.

"Jonny Mac" now teams with Jim Irwin on WTMJ radio and Eddie Doucette on WTV television to describe Bucks action all season, and he's become quite good at it.

"I had some good instructors in Eddie and Jim," McGlocklin says. "Actually, there's a lot more to doing a game than most people realize, but it's something I seemed to take to rather quickly and I enjoy it."

McGlocklin likes keeping his ties to basketball, and it's no wonder why. He entered the NBA as a third round draft choice of the Cincinnati Royals in 1965. He played two seasons with that team and a third with the San Diego Rockets before the Bucks selected the former Indiana Hoosier in the 1968 expansion draft.

A pure shooter and a tough competitor, McGlocklin ranks second on the club's career record list for games played (595), was the first Buck to make the All-Star team and was an integral part of the 1971 NBA championship squad.

Jon averaged 12.5 points a game over his eight years with the Bucks and his .505 field goal percentage ranks among the top 20 field goal shooters in NBA history.

Today, when he's not describing Bucks' action, he might be found working national games for the USA Cable Network. He also is vice-president of the Bando-McGlocklin Investment Company, Inc., a partnership operated with former Brewer Sal Bando, and is a co-owner of the Ville Du Parc Country Club.

McGlocklin has been involved in numerous charitable organizations and prime among these has been the MACC (Midwest Athletes Against Childhood Cancer) Fund, which was formed upon his retirement as an active player in 1976.

The MACC Fund helps support research for the purpose of discovering effective treatments and cures for childhood cancer. The primary benefactor of MACC Fund monies is the Midwest Children's Cancer Center located at Milwaukee Children's Hospital, one of the few exclusively pediatric cancer research facilities in the country.

Jon also has been active in Athletes for Youth, the Wisconsin Society to Prevent Blindness, and the Wisconsin Easter Seal Foundation.

Along with Doucette and Bucks Vice-President Wayne Embry, McGlocklin is one of three men who have been with the Bucks in some capacity since the franchise began in 1968.

A native of Franklin, Indiana, John and his wife, Pam, make their home in Greendale with their two children, Shannon and Meghan.

Eddie Doucette
TV Announcer

Eddie Doucette is noted for his ability to match verbal description to the most fast-paced NBA action, but even the loquacious Doucette would have trouble describing the active life he has been leading lately.

When Bucks fans hear him on WTV-Channel 18, or on the USA Cable Network, they are only seeing the cool tip of a very hot commodity. Maybe it all began when he relocated to California in 1979 with his family — wife Karen, and two sons Brett, 10, and Cory, 7. The West Coast is a lot faster than the Midwest.

Bucks fans knew all the while the popular local disc jockey, would move on to bigger and larger arenas. While he has done that, he has also managed to keep a piece of Milwaukee with him through the Bucks games he works.

Part of the reason he travels across the country to announce the Bucks games is the team's organization, he said.

"I've been around enough to know what quality is . . . and the Bucks have class," Doucette said. "They don't pinch pennies. They're first-class. I work for some other organizations on a part-time basis and, believe me, it's a complete turn-off."

The other reason he returns here is the fans.

"The people in Wisconsin have been very good to me. The environment is a lot more legitimate than what you will find out here (in California). They have been very good to my family and friends," Doucette commented.

That family does not get to see much of him in any season. Besides covering the Bucks, USA has Doucette handling basketball, east coast major league baseball Thursday nights, plus mens pro tennis, track and field, celebrity golf, and boxing . . . just to name a few.

He also hosts a sports show for Pro Serve, TV, in Dallas, Texas. He has just finished work on a sports magazine show for ON-TV, a Los Angeles based subscription network.

Then, in his spare time, he appears on commercials for MBTI, Salentine Pontiac-Buick, and Classified Insurance. All of these activities have coalesced into Doucette Promotions, Inc. located in Milwaukee.

In recent years, Doucette has toned down the hyperbole in his style. That change comes from his now frequent work outside the Midwest. Remember, Milwaukeeans have adopted as the vernacular such Doucette-isms as air ball, butcher shop in the toaster, and the cyclops.

But he still enjoys taking certain chances in his broadcasting work here that he might not take elsewhere, such as second-guessing a referee on the air, or cajoling or praising the team at certain times, unlike national broadcasters.

"Most guys (broadcasters) would rather ride the fence so they don't have to take any chances. I was told when I first took the job to create some enthusiasm. Sure I've changed my style a bit. That's because we're no longer an Edsel — we're a Cadillac," Doucette explained.

Doucette calls covering the Bucks his "labor of love," which one situation during the playoffs last year exemplifies.

It was the final game between the Bucks and the Celtics at the Arena, but Doucette was having trouble making his plane connection. The long and short of it is — Doucette ended up paying $5,400 in jet charter fees to make it to the game on time. That's a labor of love, alright.

Much of his work is free-lance, however, and Doucette sees a need to settle down after 16 years in the business. If not for his son's illness which mandated the balmy California climate, Doucette's roots might still be firmly planted in Milwaukee.

After all, he says he made his life's "single-most important contribution to society" when he teamed with Jon McGlocklin to start the Midwest Athletes Childhood Cancer Fund.

"It was just a dream at the time . . . I had no idea it would get this big," Doucette said.

Doucette has left other memories as well, including the sound of his excited or exasperated voice as he relates the emotions of a simple game to all those fans in Milwaukee who love it so well.

Doucette's voice has served him for 25 years in broadcasting. He may be on the threshold of a new experience and a more active career, but most fans will always think of him solely as a voice of the Milwaukee Bucks . . . and hope he remains that voice for years to come.

Fr. Gene Jakubek, S.J. Chaplain

Nobody really knows if the "Man Upstairs" is a Bucks' fan, but if He isn't, Fr. Gene Jakubek S.J. is probably working on it.

The popular Milwaukee priest has served as chaplain for the Bucks for the past seven years and is an avid fan.

"I've always been a jock of sorts," says Father Gene. "It's my diversion. Right after I read the obituaries in the paper every day, I turn to the sports pages."

His job with the Bucks is only one way in which Fr. Gene serves. He handles a variety of public relations duties for the Jesuit order and regularly appears in a weekly television series, "The Answer is Love", which is aired locally and on national cable television. The program is aimed at married persons, the elderly, singles and teenagers.

One of his biggest projects in recent years has been the program HELP (Happiness for the Elderly, Lonely and Poor). The program provided food, clothing and other aid to more than 100,000 people in the last year.

It has grown so rapidly that it was necessary to change facilities, from the original North Avenue location to 5919 West National Avenue this past year.

Fr. Gene also has been active in working with the Serra Club, a variety of retreats, seminars and lectures and as a sought-after convention speaker.

The focus of features in the New York Times and People magazine, Fr. Gene has been honored many times. The City of Hope cited him and the HELP program. He was named the Outstanding Communicator of the Year in 1981 by the Wisconsin Communication Association.

Other honors include the National Ten Commandments Award of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the Polish National Alliance Man of the Year and dozens of others.

For the season the Milwaukee Bucks missed 163 player games due to injury. 1981-82 regular season total was 106 player games missed due to injury. In 1981-82 the club had its entire compliment of players suited and available for action in 17 games (10-7 record). Last season that was finally accomplished on April 14, the 81st regular season game. Only Phil Ford, Armond Hill, Mickey Johnson, Paul Mokeski, and Paul Pressey did not miss a game due to injury. Averaging the injuries out per player (163 divided by 13 players the Bucks carried on the roster most of the season) would yield an average of 12.5 missed games due to injury.

STARTING LINEUPS

Injuries created a lot of shuffling, realigning and just plain piecing together last season for the Bucks starting five, maladies that resulted in 23 different groupings for the opening lap.

That sound familiar? It's nearly the same lead on a smaller note we came up with at the end of the 1981-82 season. The only difference is the 1981-82 club "only" ran through 18 different starting combos. For the 1982-83 season the Bucks totalled 163 player games missed due to injury and have withstood 27 roster changes. Over the last 10 regular season games, five new starting lineups were used.

The most frequent pairing in this manpower juggling act was Harvey Catchings and Marques Johnson at forward, Dave Cowens at center, and Phil Ford and Sidney Moncrief at guard. However, that quintet wasn't necessarily the most successful. In 19 starting assignments together, the five compiled a 13-6 (.684%) ledger, tops in both wins and losses among the groups. But seven other pairings resulted in better win/loss percentages. Four had a perfect mark (group numbers 7, 10, 11 & 22 below) and share a common denominator — Marques Johnson and Sidney Moncrief were two fifths of those undefeated (8-0) starting lineups. The other three groups that had a better winning percentage than the most frequent pairing of group eight are five, 14 & 18.

Moncrief was the sole constant in the first 16 starting lineups as listed below. Super Sid had started all 66 games until injuring his right thigh muscle and missing the 3/19 and 3/20 Philly and N.J. games. Phil Ford and Marques Johnson come close to Sid with Phil appearing as 1/5 of 12 starting lineups and Marques getting the nod in 21.

Paul Mokeski appeared in just one starting group and Charlie Criss in none. Paul Pressey was the other player who did not appear in a starting role until Coach Nelson made the decision to start Pressey instead of Ford for the remaining 17 games of the season prior to the 3/18 Detroit game.

Here are the lineups and their records:

TALE OF THE TURNSTYLES

The Milwaukee Bucks completed the 1981-82 regular season with 25 sellouts in their 41 home dates in the Arena and narrowly missed tying their all-time attendance records set during the previous season of 1980-81. In those 41 home dates in 1981-82, the Bucks drew a total of 443,288 fans for an average of 10,812 per game or .978% of Arena capacity including 25 of 41 sellouts.

Those figures are just 5,078 shy of tying the all-time mark set in 1980-81 by an average of 124 fans per game. It was the first season since the 1977-78 campaign for the Bucks that the club did not better their previous attendance marks, each of which were all-time highs.

Three records from the 1979-80 season remain unbroken. They are; in percent of capacity, total sellouts, and number of consecutive sellouts.

Through the first 14 years of the franchise, the Bucks have drawn a regular season total of 5,514,214 over 545 games for an average of 10,118 or 93% capacity. Although the Bucks are housed in the smallest arena in the NBA, the club ranks eleventh in the NBA in average attendance.

WINTERS JOINS ROBERTSON AND McGLOCKLIN AS BUCKS RETIRE JERSEY

The Milwaukee Bucks retired uniform number 32 in honor of retired veteran guard Brian Winters during special halftime ceremonies on opening night, October 28, 1983 in the Arena against the Indiana Pacers. Winters' number 32 joins Oscar Robertson's number 1, retired March 26, 1974 and Jon McGlocklin's number 14, September 17, 1976 as the third number retired by the Bucks. The retirement is symbolized by the display of the jersey number on the Arena's northwest wall.

I'm genuinely excited about the Bucks decision to retire my number," said Winters. "It is truly an honor and one of the brighter factors of my leaving basketball."

Brian announced his retirement prior to the start of the 1983-84 season after playing eight of his nine NBA years with the Bucks. "My retirement was a difficult decision, but one that I made willingly and with a lot of appreciation for what I've been able to accomplish through basketball," said Winters.

The accomplishments of which Brian made on the court include passing for 2,479 career assists in a Bucks uniform for first place on the club's all-time list. Early last season he reached the 10,000 point plateau in his NBA career. He is tied with McGlocklin on the Bucks all-time chart for games played at 595. His career scoring average is 16.2 points per game. Always a deadly shooter, Winters has hit 114 three point shots in the four years the shot has been in effect. He registered a personal single game high of 43 points on November 30, 1976 in the Milwaukee Arena against the Portland TrailBlazers. Other personal bests include 18 assists March 19, 1978 at Washington and in playoff action 33 points and 11 assists.

"Brian was a complete professional in his approach to the game," said Bucks Head Coach-Director of Player Personnel, Don Nelson. "His intelligence and game intuition were outstanding. His shooting, of course, was just superb. Brian was one of the finest shooters I've witnessed in the game. He was the type of player any coach would welcome on his club."

Last season with Milwaukee, Winters played in 57 regular season games, averaging 10.6 points per game, 2.7 assists and 1.9 rebounds. On the season he scored in double figures 33 times with the Bucks posting a 23-10 record in those contests. His 605 points pushed his career total as a Buck to 9,743 (third on the Bucks all-time list). Leading the club in scoring four times, he had a season high 30 points vs. the Nets in the Arena on March 20. From three point range, Winters hit 22-68 (.324%) while hitting 255-587 (.434%) from the field. He continued his excellent free throw accuracy canning 73-85 (.859%). Picking off 45 steals, he needed only eight more to reach 800 for his career, second on the Bucks list. Although a 6'4" guard, Winters needed ten blocked shots to reach 200. He tied for the team high game assists last season when he dished out ten against Indiana on December 12. Originally a starter, Brian became recognized as one of the top sixth men in the NBA in the past two years. Because of his excellent shooting touch, he could jump off the bench and provide the instant offense needed.

In the playoffs last year, Winters contributed 12.8 points per game, 3.5 rebounds and 3.5 assists in the sweep over Boston. He pumped in a high game of 17 against Philadelphia. Playing in 41 second season games in six years, he averaged 15.6 ppg totaling 639 points. He passed for 192 assists (4.7 average per game) and pulled down 118 rebounds (2.9).

Brian was acquired by the Bucks in the 1975 trade that sent Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to Los Angeles. His first year as a Buck was highlighted by being named to the NBA All-Star team, the first of two such honors bestowed on Winters. As a rookie with the Lakers, he was also named to the League's All-Rookie team.

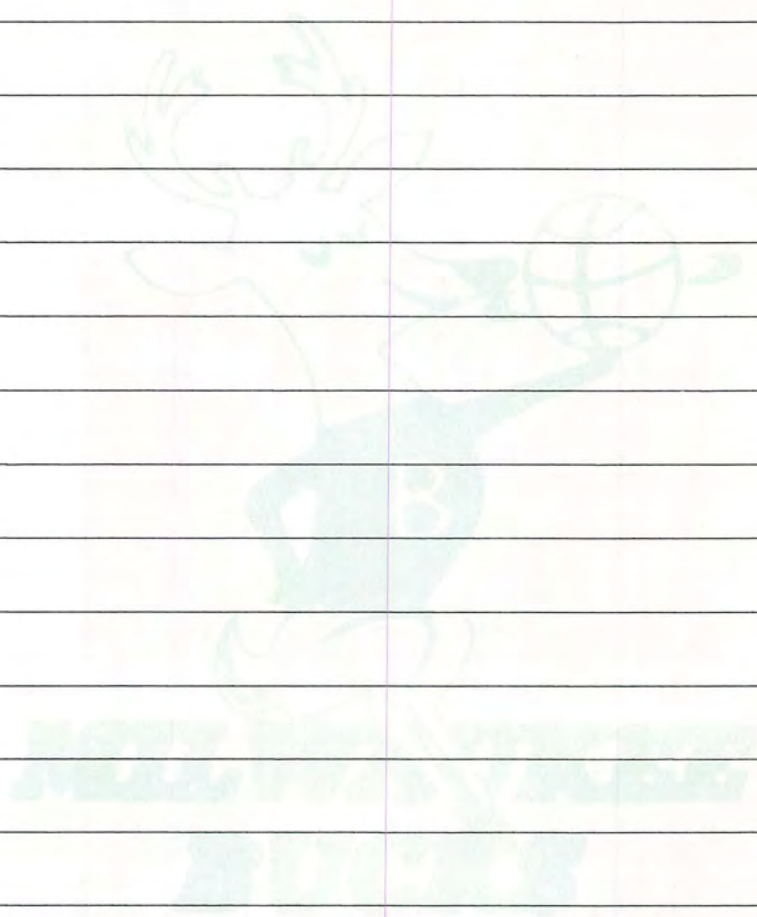

Drafted in the first round by Los Angeles in 1974, Brian enjoyed an outstanding college career at the University of South Carolina. As a senior he was named All-American while leading the Gamecocks to a 22 victory season. He finished as a member of the Gamecock 1,000 point club scoring a total 1,079 points in his career.

The Queens, New York native, played his high school ball at Archbishop Molloy, Rockaway, New York. Named a Prep All-American, he led his team to the New York City title during his junior year and a runner-up spot in his senior year.

Always a crowd pleaser, Brian earned his Master's degree at South Carolina during the summer of 1980. He and his wife Julie, have two children; Cara, age 2 and newborn son Brendan.
